

From the humidity of Northern Queensland to the dry cool climate of South Australia and all the way down to frosty Invercargill in New Zealand, the Direction Plus™ Diesel Fuel Pre-Filter kit will remove water and other contaminants from our Ultra Low Sulphur Diesel (ULSD).

ULSD is more susceptible to water emulsification, that is water molecules suspended in diesel which is harder to remove than in traditional diesel fuel. This is why old technology like sedimenters work relatively well removing whole water, but struggle with emulsified water, the contaminant you can't see.

The base of the Direction Plus™ element has a clear water drainage bowl to collect any containment and allow you to inspect at any time.

This system includes the no filter bypass technology – contaminated fuel will not be sent to the fuel system even when the filter element is blocked.

These secondary pre-filter kits will not void factory warranty as they are fitted before the factory filter on the other side of the engine, and they will not cause a restriction to the system being 30 micron, but will remove any water content from your fuel.

Whilst the smallest amount of water in your fuel may not cause immediate damage to your engine, it will be detrimental over a period of time. The Direction Plus™ Pre-Filter kit works to assist in the reduction of wear and tear costs that can easily get into the thousands of dollars in new age diesel technology - a set of 4 injectors can be a few thousand not including the labour to install and code them to your vehicles ECU.

For the ultimate front line defence against water and particle contamination, investing in a Direction Plus™ Diesel Fuel Pre-Filter Kit will protect your investment 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.
