

Roadsafe – Rackin’ up the numbers!

Roadsafe Automotive, distributor of Australia’s largest range of Steering and Suspension, have added an additional 30+ steering Rack End numbers to their ever expanding range.

With the range now incorporating over 320 part numbers, the new additions suit for various applications from the RTV Ute to the 300C Chrysler.

Rack Ends, also referred to as Inner Tie Rods, are an integral part of the vehicles rack & pinion steering system. The symptoms that usually indicate worn Rack Ends can include a “loose” feeling at the steering wheel, steering wander and/or excessive wear on the front tyres.

Rack Ends are an important product range in Roadsafe’s growing front end business. With more OE’s offering only complete replacement racks, it is imperative that Roadsafe continue to offer the most common wearing item on the rack individually – the Rack Ends.

“Offering Rack Ends as a serviceable item is a much more cost effective maintenance option for the customer, than having to replace a complete rack. In some cases, saving thousands of dollars” Tania Allatt, Roadsafe Product Marketing Manager explained. “We are working hard on continually increasing the range, to cater to our expanding Australian market.”

In addition to the huge range of vehicle specific applications, Roadsafe also offer “blank’ rack ends with either 16mm or 14mm socket threads – and no thread on the outer end. The ‘blank’ ends can be shortened and threaded to customers requirements.

With their 320+ part numbers, Roadsafe stock a wide range of Rack Ends to fit most applications. Tania advised “ and if we don’t list a rack end for your specific application we can endeavour to match the sizes of the original part to our Rack End size listing, or offer the ‘blank’ ends if they look like suiting the requirement”.
